INTRODUCTION

In this consolidated Reply Brief in support of Motion to Disqualify Defense Counsel in the above captioned cases, Plaintiff, Dongxiao Yue (“Yue”), further shows that defense counsel Fenwick & West, LLP (“Fenwick”) must be disqualified on the following grounds:

- 1) A Fenwick attorney, Claude Stern, acted as an Early Neutral in a prior case involving PowerRPC and JavaRPC disputes and he presumably shared the confidences with other Fenwick attorneys, including Fenwick partners Connie Ellerbach and Jedediah Wakefield;
- 2) A Fenwick attorney, Laurence Pulgram, communicated directly with Yue regarding substantive issues of the Netbula v. SUN case without authorization of Netbula’s former counsel;
- 3) Laurence Pulgram offered legal advices to Yue, in cases where Yue is an unrepresented party.

This Reply Brief is supported by the Declaration of Ms. Vonnah M. Brillet -- Netbula, LLC’s former counsel-- (“Brillet Decl.”) executed on April 15, 2008 and the Declaration of Dongxiao Yue (“Yue Decl.”) executed on April 17, 2008.

BACKGROUND

Yue developed the PowerRPC software since 1994. In July 1996, he founded Netbula, LLC to market the PowerRPC software. The first version of PowerRPC was published in September 1996. Yue always owned the copyright of the PowerRPC work created before Netbula was founded.

In November 2002, in the course of a lawsuit involving RPC products, Netbula and its competitor Distinct Corporation (“Distinct”) had an Early Neutral Evaluation (“ENE”) session at

1 the office of Fenwick & West, LLP. In the ENE session, Yue talked to Claude Stern, the Fenwick
2 attorney, about PowerRPC and JavaRPC, in confidence. Yue Decl., at ¶¶ 1-3.

3 In 2003, Connie L. Ellerbach, a partner at Fenwick, sent Yue a certified letter about Netbula's
4 use of the JavaRPC product name, alleging potential infringement of SUN's Java mark. Yue Decl, 5 at ¶6.

6 In January 2006, Netbula filed a copyright infringement action against Symantec Corporation
7 ("Symantec") et al (Case No. C06-0711, the "Symantec case"), alleging the infringement of 8 PowerRPC.

9 In December 2006, Netbula filed another copyright action against Storage Technology
10 Corporation ("StorageTek"), Sun Microsystems, Inc. ("SUN") et al. (Case No. C07-07391, the 11 "Netbula v. SUN case") alleging infringement of PowerRPC.

12 SUN later counter-claimed Yue personally for infringing the Java mark and unfair competition.

13 The Symantec defendants and SUN defendants are represented by Fenwick.

14 However, Yue did not realize the connection between Claude Stern, Connie L. Ellerbach and 15 the Symantec and SUN litigation team until sometime in July 2007, after Fenwick attorneys
16 showed surprising level of knowledge about the Netbula v. Distinct dispute in deposing Yue as a 17 witness in the Symantec case. Yue Decl., at ¶¶ 7-14

18 On October 22, 2007, pursuant to FRCP 24(a), acting pro se, Yue filed a motion to intervene
19 and join as a party in the Netbula v. SUN (C06-07391) case.

20 During this time, Defense counsel Laurence Pulgram sent numerous emails directly to Yue, 21 discussing the substantive issues in the Netbula v. SUN (C06-07391-MJJ) case. Mr. Pulgram also 22 communicated with Yue on Yue's then prospective lawsuit against SUN. Mr. Pulgram "advised"
23
26

1 Yue on various legal issues in the Yue v. SUN case and Yue v. Chordiant Software, Inc. case. Yue
2 Decl., at ¶¶ 18-19.

3 ARGUMENT

4 I. Fenwick must be disqualified because it received related information from Yue in 5 confidence

6 1. The Yue v. SUN case and the Netbula v. Distinct case are substantially factually
7 related

8 First, the Netbula v. Distinct case (the “Distinct case”) was about PowerRPC and JavaRPC
9 marks and related claims and counterclaims. The Distinct case was closely related to the market
10 and value of PowerRPC and JavaRPC, the licensing of these technologies and the RPC software
11 market in general. A key question in the Netbula v. Distinct case was the value of PowerRPC.
12 According to defense counsel, the instant cases also involve “value of the copyrighted work” (i.e., 13 PowerRPC) and “pricing history” which is “crucial evidence as to the market value or reasonable 14 royalty for the software at issue.” Docket No. 22 of the Yue v. SUN case, p.4:3-26.

15 Second, the Netbula v. Distinct case also involved copyright dispute, as shown in the following 16 document request in the related Netbula v. Symantec case. Yue Decl., at ¶¶ 11-12.

17
18 DOCUMENT REQUEST NO. 22

19 All DOCUMENTS CONCERNING alleged copyright infringement by NETBULA, 20 including but not limited to DOCUMENTS CONCERNING accusations by DISTINCT that 21 NETBULA was engaged in copyright infringement, as set forth in Paragraph 13 of Defendant
22 Distinct Corporation’s Supplemental Counterclaims, Netbula, LLC v. Distinct Corp., Case No. C-
02-1253-JL (N.D. Cal.).

23 Dated: October 12, 2006

FENWICK & WEST LLP

24
25 By:
26 Jedediah Wakefield

1 On March 9, 2007, Mr. Wakefield wrote following about the request above:

2 ...Netbula has produced a single document, a letter sent by counsel for 3 Distinct Corporation ("Distinct") alleging that PowerRPC infringed 4 Distinct's copyright and demanding that Netbula confirm that it will stop distributing its product.

5 Exhibit A attached to the Declaration of Dongxiao Yue (emphasis added).

6 Third, in the Netbula v. Symantec case, Mr. Wakefield deposed Yue at great length about 7 copyright and trademark dispute between Netbula and Distinct, involving both PowerRPC and 8 JavaRPC. Yue Decl., at ¶¶ 13-16.

9 These facts show that the instant cases are closely related to the Netbula v. Distinct dispute.

10
11 2. An unverifiable claim of screening cannot relieve Fenwick from its ethical obligations of 12 confidentiality and loyalty

13 Defense counsel relies on the case of County of Los Angeles, 223 F.3d at 995-996 for the 14 proposition that Fenwick should not be disqualified because the information Fenwick obtained in 15 the ENE session was “screened.” However, similar arguments were considered but rejected by this 16 judicial district in the case of Hitachi, Ltd. v. Tatung Co., 419 F. Supp.2d 1158 (N.D.Cal. 2006).

17 In Hitachi, the law firm implemented an ethical wall to insulate a lawyer “prior to entering an 18 appearance” in that case by even setting up a separate library. Id. at 1160. Noting that “[m]otions 19 to disqualify counsel are decided under state law¹,” Judge Breyer found that County of Los 20 Angeles “[has] not altered the established rule of vicarious disqualification.” Id. at 1162.

22 The established law in California rejects ethical walls and neither 23 Speedee Oil nor County of Los Angeles reverse Klien, Henriksen, or 24 Flatt... district courts have not universally rushed to adopt the more flexible approach foretold in County of Los Angeles.

25 _____
26 ¹ 419 F. Supp.2d. at 1160.

1 Id. at 1164. “Even if ethical walls were permissible the court would still disqualify [law firm]”. Id.

3 In addition, Mr. Claude Stern acquired the confidences in 2002. Fenwick could not have 4 possibly foreseen the current PowerRPC copyright litigations back in the 2002 - 2005 period and 5 could not have possibly implemented “ethical walls” since then.

6 Mr. Wakefield had been working closely with Claude Stern since 2001². Connie L.
7 Ellerbach has been a partner of Fenwick since at least December 2002³. Since there were no
8 ethical walls among Mr. Stern, Ms. Ellerbach and Mr. Wakefield back then, there was nothing in 9 2002-2003 to rebut the presumption of shared confidences among Mr. Wakefield, Ms. Ellerbach 10 and Claude Stern -- even assuming the presumption is rebuttable. Therefore, Mr. Wakefield and 11 Ms. Ellerbach⁴ must be disqualified, and as a result Fenwick must be vicariously disqualified.

12
13 3. Defense counsel’s excuse of delay by Plaintiff is unavailing

14 Plaintiff only made the connection between Claude Stern, Connie Ellerbach and Fenwick 15 after he was deposed by Mr. Wakefield about the Netbula v. Distinct dispute in June 2007.

16 Fenwick should have followed ethical standards and disqualified itself from the very 17 beginning of the cases. Instead, it presumably took advantage of the confidences it obtained in the 18 ENE session and obtained vast amount of additional discovery on the Netbula - Distinct dispute.
19 In July 2007, Yue wrote about the ENE session in a declaration, bringing the issue to the attention
20 of Fenwick attorneys. Fenwick did not disqualify itself either. Yue Decl., at ¶¶ 4-17.

23 ² See, e.g., <http://www.fenwick.com/pressroom/5.1.1.asp?mid=118&loc=SD> (An intellectual property case
24 which was led by partner Claude Stern and backed by associates Jed Wakefield.), last accessed on April 14, 25 2008.

26 ³ See <http://www.fenwick.com/pressroom/5.1.1.asp?mid=35&loc=FN> last accessed on April 14, 2008.

27 ⁴ For the same reason, anyone was in Fenwick in November 2002 and did not leave Fenwick must 28 be disqualified.

1 communicating to Yue about Netbula's FRCP 25(c) motion. The rest of the email was plainly
2 about Netbula's case, which was represented by Ms. Brilllet.

3 On the same day, Mr. Pulgram sent the following email to Yue about SUN's summary
4 judgment motion in the Netbula v. SUN case.

5 Dear Mr. Yue:

6 Your claim that a single declaration, filed a few hours after midnight,
7 precludes consideration of the summary judgment motion that was timely 8 filed, and that you had been aware was coming for eight months, is 9 untenable. The "25 pages" of materials in the declaration consisted of two 10 pages of text, the two underlying contracts already of record in this action, 11 two emails produced to Netbula long ago, and blank page separators. I 12 cannot imagine that you would claim prejudice, but if you do, I would be 13 happy to afford you nine additional hours to submit a declaration. Sun 14 will not withdraw its motion.

15 Laurence Pulgram

16 Since Mr. Pulgram was freely communicating to Yue on the Netbula matter, on October 26,
17 2007, Yue sent an email to Mr. Pulgram about filing a new action based on the copyrights Yue 18 personally owned. Mr. Pulgram responded to the above email as follows.

19 Mr. Yue,

20 I will confer with my client and respond to you next week.

21 Laurence Pulgram

22 On October 31, 2007, Mr. Pulgram sent the following email to Ms. Brilllet and Yue.

23 We do not intend to address Dr. Yue with respect to such matters, as 24 Netbula is represented by counsel.

25 However, Dr. Yue's reference below to a December 16, 2005 letter from 26 Sun threatens, for a second time, to breach the express agreement of 27 confidentiality that Sun required before the settlement discussions of 28 which it is a part. His reference to his desire to use extrinsic evidence to interpret the license agreements has also previously been addressed. This suggests that you may not have transmitted to him the attached prior response, as we requested.

1 The message above shows that Mr. Pulgram knowingly communicated to Yue about the 2 Netbula v. SUN case. He says he should not communicate to Yue, nevertheless, he sends the email
3 directly to Yue, in an attempt to suppress certain evidence in Netbula's case.

4 Ms. Brillet never authorized or consent to such direct communications. In fact, Ms. Brillet
5 stated such direct communications were willful violation of attorney ethics. Yue Decl., at ¶20.
6 Defense counsel alleged that Ms. Brillet actively encouraged the direct communications on 7 December 6, 2007⁶. This allegation is soundly refuted by Ms. Brillet. See, Brillet Decl., at ¶¶ 1-5.
8 On December 6, 2007, Yue spoke with Mr. Wakefield about the pro se Petition for Writ of 9 Mandamus Yue filed in the Ninth Circuit⁷. In addition, all the email communications quoted 10 above were made before December 6, 2007.

11 Mr. Pulgram initiated the direct communications with Yue on substantive matter
12 represented by Ms. Brillet, and he persisted on making such direct communications even after Ms.
13 Brillet questioned him about such communications. Under such circumstances, Mr. Pulgram
14 should be disqualified or otherwise sanctioned. See, e.g., Crane v. State Bar, 30 Cal.3d 117 (1981)
15 (attorney was suspended because of letter sent by his staff to a represented party).

18 III. Mr. Pulgram Should be Disqualified for Offering Legal Advices to an 19 Unrepresented Party

20 Mr. Pulgram sent numerous legal advices on cases in which Yue is a pro se plaintiff or litigant.
21 For instance, on October 29, 2007, he wrote to Yue:
22

23 ⁶ Plaintiff noted that in his declaration, Mr. Wakefield placed the December 6, 2007 event before 24 October 22, 2007 and omitted the date. See Wakefield Declaration at ¶ 15.

25 ⁷ Mr. Wakefield filed a declaration about this conversation on the docket of the Netbula v. SUN
26 case. See, Declaration of Jedediah Wakefield dated December 10, 2007, Docket No. 127 of the 27 C06-7391-JW case, p.2:15-23.

1 First, we do not believe that you are an appropriate plaintiff to enforce
2 Netbula's copyrights. Our position in this regard will be fully spelled out
3 in our filing on Tuesday opposing your request to be substituted as a
4 plaintiff in the Sun action. (We have cited a couple of cases in the MAR
5 filed on Friday, but that is just to advise the court of the issue, not to 6 argue it in full). To the extent that you are not an appropriate plaintiff in 7 the existing action by Netbula against Sun, you would be equally
8 inappropriate in any new action that you may intend to file as Netbula's 9 assignee.

10 Second, in the event that the Court disagrees with Sun's position in this 11 regard and concludes that you could be an appropriate plaintiff, in that 12 situation it would be highly inappropriate for you to commence a separate 13 lawsuit about the same subject. You have already attempted to substitute
14 in the Sun action, and to intervene there. Commencing a separate lawsuit
15 would unnecessarily proliferate litigation, at least if the claims that you 16 wish to raise are of a subject matter and causes of action duplicative of 17 the existing action. Sun cannot imagine just what claims it is that you 18 wish to add, and therefore cannot tell you whether or not they must be 19 joined in the present lawsuit (assuming that you are entitled individually 20 to raise such claims at all, which we believe we are not). Therefore, 21 please advise what those purportedly new claims would be, so I can 22 respond to them. Indeed, it is customary, before requesting a party's 23 consent to amendment of claims, to provide a copy of the proposed 24 amendments.

25 Third, before you commence any threatened new action, it is incumbent
26 upon you to wait until Judge Jenkins has ruled on your pending requests 27 for intervention and substitution. It is wholly inappropriate in such 28 circumstances to commence yet another action after having presented the currently pending motions to Judge Jenkins. Further, any effort to seek a TRO or other preliminary relief in a second action would be entirely inappropriate, given not only the ruling on the TRO by Judge Zimmerman, but also the fact that you have personally already requested preliminary relief in your now pending motion to intervene in the existing Sun case.

We therefore suggest that you consider the consequences very seriously before filing such inappropriate pleadings--and obtain the advice of qualified counsel before you do so. Magistrate Judge Chen's ruling should have demonstrated that filing unwarranted motions is a serious matter and has very real consequences.

1 I realize, of course, that I cannot keep you from filing with the Court
2 whatever it is that you choose to file. It only costs a few hundred dollars 3 to commence a lawsuit that could cost thousands to defend, and which 4 Sun would seek to recover from you personally thereafter. I therefore reiterate the importance of your obtaining counsel as to all the consequences before you act.

5 The email above again contained many issues that were represented by Ms. Brilllet – such as 6 Netbula’s motion to substitute party and SUN’s opposition.

7 On Yue’s effort to protect his personally owned copyrights, Mr. Pulgram’s message mirrors
8 the letter in Molski v. Mandarin Touch Restaurant, 359 F. Supp.2d 924 (C.D.Cal. 2005) in many 9 aspects. Even the threat of attorneys’ fees is similar. In Molski, the attorneys advised the 10 unrepresented defendant that it would be very expensive to retain attorneys to defend the prospect 11 lawsuit. Here, Mr. Pulgram advised Yue that SUN will spend a lot of attorneys’ fees and seek 12 them from Yue.
13

14 Mr. Pulgram’s conduct, coupled with his advice to Judge Martin J. Jenkins to exclude Yue
15 from the October 31, 2007 hearing of SUN’s administrative motion to vacate the hearing of Yue’s
16 motion to intervene and join as a party in the Netbula v. SUN case, was highly prejudicial.
17

18 Plaintiff will give another example of Mr. Pulgram’s legal advice to Yue in matters where Yue 19 is an unrepresented party.

20 Judge Jenkins stated in one of his orders:

21 During the November 20, 2007 hearing, the Court instructed Yue that he 22 could not file motions, notice hearing dates, or speak in court unless he 23 had leave of court or until he was given permission to represent himself.⁸
24

25 ⁸ During the December 14, 2007 hearing, Yue attempted to object to SUN’s oral motion for the instant Yue
26 v. SUN case, which was then presided over by Judge Illston.

1 Given the existence of such an order⁹, on December 5, 2007, Mr. Pulgram sent Yue an email,
2 asking Yue to file a motion in the Netbula v. SUN case. Mr. Pulgram wrote:

3 Judge Jenkins' order that Dr. Yue not file papers... I do not know why it 4 would be assumed, without more, that this order precludes filings that 5 specifically relate to claims as to which Dr. Yue actually is a party.

6 As the hearing transcript shows, Judge Jenkins recognized that Yue was not trying to assert 7 the rights of Netbula. But Judge Jenkins made it clear that Yue was not “given permission to 8 represent himself.” Remarkably, Mr. Pulgram re-interpreted Judge Jenkins’s order for Yue. Mr.
9 Pulgram’s invitation for Yue to file a motion on the Netbula v. SUN docket was asking Yue to 10 violate an explicit court order, which may result in contempt proceedings against Yue. Mr.
11 Pulgram’s misleading legal advice to Yue was highly prejudicial.

12 Due to page limit, Plaintiff is unable to analyze all the communications to Yue from Mr.
13 Pulgram on substantive matters represented by Netbula’s former counsel Vonnah M. Brillet, and 14 Mr. Pulgram’s legal advice to Yue where he is an unrepresented party. Plaintiff can provide 15 additional supporting documents if the Court requires him to do so.
16

18 CONCLUSION

19 Plaintiff has been severely prejudiced by defense counsel’s breach of confidence and trust, 20 direct communications on matters represented by counsel and “legal advice” on matters where 21 Plaintiff was unrepresented. Plaintiff respectfully asks the Court to disqualify defense counsel 22 from the instant cases and the related cases.

24 _____
25 ⁹ At the November 20, 2007 hearing, Judge Jenkins did not indicate that Yue could request leave of court to 26 file motions.
